

i would like to know why directv or dish network can show local channels from one dma and cable can show from two dma's? cable also advertises their channels as digital. i subscribe to directv and my local channels are the norfolk va. dma. i live in nc not in va. i vote in nc and the norfolk va dma doesn't have any thing much to do with my area including politics. i would like to have the greenville nc dma as my local channels on directv or dish network. can you help me with this? i have tried and outside antenna. but, i recieve alot of interference with or without an antenna booster when tring to watch the greenville nc dma.

thanks,
chris
